This market area showed price growth as well as listing inventory declines across both property types covered. The median sales price for condos rose 1.2% to $217,500, and the median sales price for single families increased

4.7% to $450,000 respectively from the same period last year. The average sales price and average price per square foot followed the same patterns for both property types. In the luxury market, representing the top ten percent of all sales, the trend was similar but impacted by the shift in sales size. The luxury condo market, beginning at $665,000 saw the average size of a sale surge 20.7%, driving the price trend indicators up sharply. Market-wide listing inventory for condos slipped 0.8% to 1,527 and edged 2.5% higher to 1,432 for single-families respectively as compared to the year-ago quarter. Luxury condo inventory fell further than the overall market, down 21.4% to 313 while luxury single-family supply slipped 2.1% to 410. The downward shift in supply is contrarian to most

South Florida luxury markets tracked in the Elliman Report series. With the reduction in listing inventory that tightened the market, the number of sales across the region also experienced modest declines over the same period.

LUXURY

- Condo price trends surged year over year partially due to the jump in average sales size
- Condo listing inventory fell sharply pressing the market pace faster
- Single-family price trends showed mixed results as listing inventory slipped
- Nominal changes to single-family marketing time and negotiability

Luxury Mix Condo	Sales Share	Volume Share
>$2M (%)	2.0%	20.8%

Min - $1M (%)	85.2%	50.0%

- Condo price trend indicators rose sharply as listing inventory slipped
- Condo marketing time and negotiability expanded

SINGLE-FAMILY

- Because of the small number of single-family sales, the sharp drop in sales size skewed price trends sharply lower
- Single-family marketing time and negotiability tightened

Note: This sub-category is the analysis of Highland Beach sales. The data is also contained within the other markets presented.
