For the sixth consecutive month, median rental price exceeded the prior year level. Tight mortgage lending conditions and rising employment have kept the pressure on the rental market. Median rental price in August increased 0.8% to $3,175 from the same month last year. Studio apartments were the only size category that reflected a year-over-year increase in median rental price. However, the luxury market, which began at $6,500, showed gains in all price indicators over the same period. Luxury median rental price, the top 10% of the rental market, increased 9.2% to $8,400. The next 30% of the market or "Upper Tier" posted a 20.6% increase in median rental price to $4,252. The use of landlord concessions remained rare, accounting for 3.4% of all rental transactions. When used, the average size of a concession was 0.9 months of equivalent rent. Days on market, the average number of days from the original list date to the rental date, fell to 36 days, the lowest level in 2 years. Listing discount, the percentage difference between original list price and rental price, fell to 1.2%, marking the third lowest level of negotiability in more than 6 years.

Note: The Brooklyn rental market analysis is comprised of transactions in the north, northwest and east regions of the borough.

For the first time in 14 months, the Brooklyn median rental price declined from the prior year period. Median rental price was $2,808, 1.5% below the August result in 2013. Since the beginning of 2014, monthly median rental price remained relatively stable despite the extended period of year-over-year gains. Average rental price increased 2% to $3,172 and average rental price per square foot increased 5.6% to $39.20 respectively from the prior year period. Brooklyn median rental price was $367 lower than Manhattan, a larger difference than the $295 difference in the prior year period. While the luxury market threshold began at $4,631 in August, it fell 1.3% from the year ago period at nearly the same rate as the overall market. The use of landlord concessions remained nominal, accounting for 0.5% of transactions.

The average marketing time fell by a modest 2 days to the third fastest level in 6 years. Listing discount fell sharply to 1.5% from 5.5% in the prior year period.

Note: The Queens rental market analysis is comprised of transactions in the northwest region of the borough.

Although the Queens median rental price slipped 1% to $2,788 from the same period last year, all size categories posted year-over-year gains. The overall price indicators were skewed lower by the shift in the mix to smaller-sized apartments. The market share of studio apartments expanded to 16.6% of all rentals, up from an unusual low of 7.6% in the same month last year. Average rental price rose 7% to $2,934 and average rental price per square foot increased 10.4% to $43.12 respectively from the same period last year. New rental activity continued to expand as additional housing stock continued to be added to the market. Median rental price for the northwest region of Queens was $20 less than Brooklyn, a nominal difference. Days on market expanded by 9 days to 45 days and negotiability remained nominal at 0.4%, influenced by the 31.8% market share of new development activity in the region.
