In what continues to be a recurring theme, Brooklyn housing prices pushed higher and records were set across the market. Attribution for these price gains goes to improving local economic conditions and low, but rising inventory. While median sales price set a record in the previous quarter, average sales price set a new high in the second quarter, rising 0.7% to $788,529 from the prior year quarter. Median sales price increased 5.2% to $605,000 over the same period, falling 1% short of the record set in the prior quarter, but year-to-date, was ahead of last year by 10.8%. Condo and co-op median sales price edged 1.7% and 1.2% respectively from the prior year quarter. Median sales price for 1-3 family sales rose 3.3% to $680,000 as average price per square foot set a record of $411, the highest point reached in the twelve years this metric was tracked. Brownstones, a sub-market of the 1-3 family market located in the northwest region, jumped 38.8% to a record $2,589,500 over the same period. Median sales price for Brownstones also reached a record rising 21.2% to $2,898,551. The luxury housing market, defined as the top ten percent of all sales during the period, began at $1,500,000, up 0.7% from the same period last year. Despite the records set in the overall market, luxury price indicators under performed. Median sales price declined 5.3% to $2,025,000 from the same period last year. The number of sales declined for the fourth consecutive quarter as low inventory levels, despite recent gains, pushed price indicators to new levels. There were 1,735 sales in the fourth quarter, down 16.8% from the prior year quarter. Although inventory jumped 38.6% to 4,269 from last year as sellers were pulled into the market by rising prices, it remained 2.8% below the decade quarterly average of 4,395.

As a result of falling sales and rising supply, the absorption rate, the number of months to sell all listing inventory at the current rate of sales, rose to 7.4 months. The market pace is 42.6% faster than the 12.9-month peak set in the first quarter of 2009 at the beginning of the financial crisis. Listing discount, the percentage difference between the list price at time of sale and the sales price, was 8%, up from 1% in the prior year quarter. The spike in this metric suggests that sellers are setting listing prices further from market value, prompted by record sales prices, but are being met with resistance by buyers. This may help explain the restraint on the number of sales in addition to inventory. Days on market, the average number of days between the last list price change to the contract date, fell 33% to 73 days from the same period last year.
